

Meet your classmates

24 different cards | A4 | Two cards per sheet

Print pages 2-13 for the players, cut each sheet in half, and give each person one card. Print at actual size on A4; on US Letter, choose Fit to page. You will need pens or counters.

1. Choose prompts that fit

Read the prompts before printing. Replace anything your class would find difficult or uncomfortable. Print one card per student; everyone starts with the center marked.

2. Meet a classmate

Students ask a question from a square, listen to the answer, and write the matching classmate's first name in that square. Agree whether each name may appear once or twice on a card. Passing on a question is always allowed.

3. Share a discovery

A row, column, or diagonal completes bingo. Let players finish their conversation before announcing it. At the end, invite volunteers to introduce a classmate and something they learned.

Write names on the lines in the squares. Each person may skip a question. For a seated game, rotate conversation partners instead of walking around.

Free to print and share with your class or group. These cards use words, not pictures; check that the reading level suits your players.
